

Finally, most sightseeing spots get hopelessly crowded during the vacation seasons.

No one enjoys being at major tourist attractions when they are overwhelmingly packed with people on vacation.

If people were able to take their vacations at different times of the year, everyone could have a good time.

For these three reasons, it is clear that the Japanese workers should not all go on their vacation at the same time, as they do now.